MILITARY CREDITS IN THE REICHSTAG

NEWS FROM RIO JANEIRO.

Paris 16th—Admiral Laures funeral took place to-day and was most imposing. His successor has not yet been named The decree will be issued next week.

Berlin 16th—The Reichstag has commenced the debates on the supplementary credits for the army and navy.

Rio Janeiro, 16th—Advices from Santos state that the ill state of the public health and the terrible heat have caused a general strike amongst the working classes. The men will not even work in the port works. In view of this state of things and of the death of their employees many of the local morchants and tradesmen have applied for legal suspension of business. The president of the province has forwarded a petition to that effect. The Comte d'Eu left to-day for Santos in the Aquidaban to make inquiries into the actual state of affairs.

POLITICAL ANIMOSITY IN ENGLAND.

London 15th (1 p.m.)—The stock market is depressed owing to rumors of probable rupture between Austria and Servia.

Paris 15th (2 p.m.)—The Bourse is flat. Comptoir shares 320; Societe des Metaux 90.

The republican papers applaud the prosecution of Naquet, Laguerre, Laissant, and Turquet, whose supporters maintain that the republican organs are endeavoring to destroy the principles which form the foundation of the Republic.

The Presse states that yesterday was a splendid day for Boulangism and that Boulanger's victory at the elections will be complete. The organs of the League say that it is now Boulanger's turn to speak to the country.

Brooklyn 14th—The three individuals arrested on suspicion of having forged Brazilian Bank notes are still in custody and will be tried shortly.

London 16th—At the Kensington elections yesterday the Gladstonian candidate, Beaufoy, scored a tremendous victory over his Tory opponent, Hope: 4069 against 3439. At the preceding election Davis, the Tory candidate, had been returned by 3,222 against 2702 for Beaufoy.

Paris, 16—A Liberal Union Committee, Barboux chairman, has been formed. Leon Say is on the Committee as well as others who recently protested against Cæsarism and radicalism. They insist on an election by the majority of the Moderates in the Chambers as the only means of restoring France to her foremost rank in the comity of nations.

La Paix and The Nineteenth Century are much opposed to the prosecution of the Patriotic League, which they consider to be an anti-liberal move on the part of the Conservative organs.

London, 16th—In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Matthews was interpellated in regard to the charge against Mr. Anderson, an employee in the Home Office, who allowed Major Le Caron to examine the correspondence forwarded in connection with the Parnell question before his cross-examination in the witness-box. In reply the Home Secretary said he knew nothing and had authorized nothing, but that he approved Mr. Anderson's conduct. Sir William Harcourt called on the House to decide immediately on the charge. This motion will be considered on Monday

Political animosity waxes warmer every day. Morley, amid cheers and great enthusiasm announced that the Opposition were decided to pass a vote of censure on the Attorney-General and to declare the Times guilty of publishing four pamphlets against certain members of the House. The question is involving the Ministry in the most serious difficulties.

THE ROSARIO RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

The profound sensation caused by the news of the terrible disaster on the Rosario Line was in no way diminished yesterday by the countless details published. Accounts of eye-witnesses contributed to intensify the burning interest of the hour, and from morn till night no other topic was discussed within the the walls of the city. An accident of the magnitude of last Thursday's, generally reveals all the deficiencies in the service of a line, and brings to light all the defects of the authorities. Now that thirteen of the victims have been interred far from their friends, and that 90 unfortunates are stretched in excruciating agony on as many beds hurriedly made up in the city hospitals, we begin to see how easily the disaster could have been avoided. In the first place, the Company should not be allowed to use mineral-oil for lighting purposes. Kerosene should be kept away from the railway carriage with the same care as a lighted cigarette from a powder magazine. The Southern Railway uses vegetable oil. The Western of Buenos Ayres employs "potro" oil. The bad of this last mentioned is at present in such a wretched condition and the shaking of the trains so strong that the danger of accident is always present. The wonder is the lamps are not smashed every day and that the trains do not run off the track every hour. In regard to the solidity of the earthworks, the Rosario Line has perhaps no rival in this country. We cannot recollect any complaint in this respect, and it was freely stated yesterday in railway-circles that the derailment had not been caused by any imperfection of the bed. It would appear that the driver had endeavoured to slacken the speed of the engine, thus producing a violent jerk which threw the lighter wagon off the rails, the other two wagons following. It may be asked by what right the train was driven at full speed at night-time, and for what reason the manager had entrusted the train to the care, of a driver, who has the reputation of being addicted to drink. These questions will be put to the Company by the authorities, and a satisfactory answer will be demanded. No other company runs night-trains at full speed. Few other companies employ kerosene to light the carriages, and none would be so mad as to rely on the skill and care of a driver, who, if we may credit the reports circulated yesterday, has never been employed for any length of time by other companies. So far all the circumstances of the disaster paint the Rosario Railway Company in a nasty light. The report of the doors of the carriages having been locked has not, it is true, been fully confirmed, but it has not been denied. The overcrowding of the carriages, a circumstance which considerably facilitated the devouring and deadly work of the flames, has been proved beyond the shadow of a doubt. To sum up, we may say in all safety and without fear of contradiction that a disaster like last Thursday's which will live in the public memory for many a year to come, could never occur in the Argentine Republic, if the authorities obliged the railway-companies to adopt the few precautions embodied in our preceding remarks. The Board of Public Works and the National Railway Board have sent their inspectors to draw up a full report of the disaster, and there is no doubt the authorities will now adopt strict measures to prevent the recurrence of so terrible a catastrophe. Such measures should have been taken before the Rosario line was built. However, it is unnecessary to lay too much stress on this point. Let us hope that the recent disaster will prove a lesson and a warning to the railway-companies in the country. At the same time we may observe that the authoritios deserve some censure for the unprepared state in which they were found on Friday morning. The city was steeped in sleep. Only two police-men could be found at the station, and the Asistencia Publica was rendered helpless for the want of horses. Such supineness would appear to point to a blissful confidence and belief in the perfection of our railways.

THE CRISIS AT ROME.

Cannes, Feb. 11th.

Artillery is drawn up around the Quirinal, the shops in the city are closed, the streets held by the troops, and foreigners are fleeing from Rome in a panic. It looks as if King Humbert's reign were drawing to a close, and that the Pope may also be turned out of Rome. With so democratic a Premier as Crispi the King has apparently counted on keeping the Republican party in check, and perhaps Crispi has done his best to maintain the monarchy. But it has not escaped notice that the social relations between him and the Court were strained for some time back, Queen Margherita refusing to invite Mme. Crispi to the Quirinal, because her husband had divorced his first wife. A few weeks ago however, a telegram was published that the Queen had sent Mme. Crispi a valuable bracelet, which may be taken as a sign that urgent circumstances had compelled Her Majesty to give way.

The actual position in Rome reminds us of 1848 at Paris or Vienna, which ended in both cases in the dethronement of the monarch. The Royal Family is shut up in the Quirinal just as the Pope is in the Vatican, while the mob are sacking the shops in the Corso. Some 5,000 unemployed workmen held a meeting near Castel Sant Angelo and resolved to commence barricades in the streets, but were prevented by the military. Happily so far there is no bloodshed, for when that begins it is difficult to stop it. The Government being in possession of the telegraphs we are unable to judge what side the troops are likely to take. If it be true that they have arrested 500 of the mob there is reason to expect that they will stand by King Humbert, but there is unquestionably a strong republican feeling all through Italy and pervading every class of society. Much will now depend on the attitude of other Italian cities. If they remain quiet during the next ten days the Government may restore order in Rome and obtain a new lease for the monarchy. But if Naples and Bologna, Florence and Milan join the revolt no human power can save the House of Savoy.

Although the movement has sprung up so suddenly there have been alarming indications for at least two months, of which doubtless the Pope was aware when he notified the European Powers, last December, that he might soon have to leave Rome. The popular discontent seems to have been growing since the Emperor William's visit last September, when republican placards were put up hostile to Germany and friendly to France. One of the most dangerous manifestations was that headed by Menotti Garibaldi, on the 29th ult., at Rome, when "Viva la Republica" echoed through the streets, until the police dispersed the assemblage. It is difficult to ascertain whether the Republican party is stronger in Rome or in the provinces. From what I have seen of Italians I am inclined to think that two-thirds of the educated classes are for the Monarchy, and two-thirds of the working classes for the Republic: in case of a "plebiscitum" the Republicans would therefore have a large majority.

Italians are more naturally and essentially republican than any other people, even the English. They were the first to imitate the old Greek Republics, and when all the rest of Europe groaned under the feudal system and absolute monarchy Florence, Pisa, Sienna, Venice, Salerno, &c., were thriving republics, centres of commerce, civilization and art. Even Rome in the earlier period was a republic with the Pope for President. Popular government has been an instinct of the Italian people, whether the ruler was called Dandolo or Medici, Rienzi or Massaniello, or Garibaldi. With all their faults the Italians have finer tastes, clearer intellects and loftier aims than any other nation in Europe. They worship genius in whatever form, and can ill accustom themselves to pay homage to a prince or an emperor, who has no other merit than the accident of birth.

Apart, however, from the Republican tendency of the people, it must be confessed there are other causes to make many wish for a change of system. The finances have been for some years badly handled not so recklessly as in France or Russia, but without sufficient regard for the unfortunate tax-payers. Military expenditure has been enormous, especially in the navy, some ships, such as the Lepanto and Duilio, having cost, each, one million sterling. The army has been raised to half a million men, including the militia, thus drawing from active industry a large portion of the working power and entailing heavy outlay for the support of so many combatants. In the olden times, of 30 years ago, taxation was comparatively light, and although the wealth of Italy is now double what it was then the public burdens have been increased much more. Local taxes in some of the provinces are extremely high.

Add to this, that the Government announced last week a deficit of 192 million francs, or nearly 8 millions sterling, which would be enough to stagger the Finance Minister of a richer country than Italy. The public debt is already so high that another loan could only be made on disadvantageous terms, and yet how else is it possible to raise the means of covering the deficit? Fresh taxes would exasperate the people. The worst of all is that even if the Government could get the 8 millions sterling that is required this year they would be just as badly off next year, since the ways and means are much below expenditure. Only ten days ago King Humbert declared that his Ministry would have to demand an extra vote for military purposes in order to put the kingdom in a proper state of defence. This implies another deficit or else an increase of taxes, and it is no wonder if the people evince discontent.

Another unpleasant feature is the enormous increase of emigration, no fewer than 300,000 Italians having left their country last year. They go, partly to avoid conscription, partly to escape heavy taxation, and mainly because they can do better in the River Plate and the U. States This, however, alarms the Government, who see a diminution of tax-payers and of the bone and sinew for its army in case of need. It was said a few months ago that Crispi meant to check emigration. He might as well try to check Vesuvius.

The beginning of the present revolution was among the unemployed builders and bricklayers of Rome, some 10,000 in number. The Government promised to give them employment, which would be a dangerous expedient, involving fresh outlay on a Treasury already in great straits.

Why does not Crispi at once pay their passage to Buenos Ayres? Unemployed workmen signify that there is something wrong in the economic system. In Italy as in most countries, there is plenty of work to be done if labor were turned into proper channels. Bricklayers could turn their hands to something else. Many industries, however, are hampered by excessive taxation and import dues, the result in great measure of a very large national debt. This is the millstone round the neck of Italy.

From all we see it is another illustration of the truth of the saying that "good government means good finances." The deficit of 1889 is probably at the bottom of the present movement, just as Boulanger's victory in France was due to the irregular condition of French finances under the republic. It is odd that just when France is giving up the republican regime Italy seems about to adopt it. The new departure in Italy would knock the Triple Alliance to pieces.

LONDON LETTER.

PARNELL COMMISSION.

SENSATION.

From our own Correspondent

Feb'y 15th.

Following Major le Caron—alias Mr. Beach, apothecary—comes the solicitor of the Times, Mr. Soames, into the box, and then the manager of the Times, Mr. Macdonald, and matters are growing warm. "The letters" carefully mummified in gelatine were produced, and upon the sixtieth day of the sitting of the Parnell Commission the public, for the first time since the inquiry opened, take an interest in the proceedings. The Commission so far, as the Pall Mall of to-night well observes, has verified Mr. Parnell's words, who said if he took action against the Times the trial would be made the occasion for covering the floor of the Court with a bloody puddle by vamping up every outrage that had taken place in Ireland for the last ten years with the set purpose of discrediting the National Cause.

Quite so. The Times calculated upon the official reprint of "Parnellism and Crime" to work up the sympathies of the English people in favour of the property-holders in Ireland and, indirectly, in Britain. As far as we can judge the English people have proved to be less stupid than the Times imagined. They see through the conspiracy of the "classes," although there are still many well-dressed mechanics and people on the stock exchange who think a recapitulation of outrages and breaches of the law in Ireland has something to do with the case now before the three judges in the Strand. The judges know better and, like the politically educated public, they have been waiting impatiently for "these letters." If they are proved to be forgeries the case drops and in the end the Times, the Government and the classes drop with them. If the letters are genuine Home Rule must wait until the newly risen wave of the social-democratic tide has swept away obstructions in England and Scotland.

I am sorry that the present mail should leave at an interesting but indecisive moment in the evidence given before the Court. But you will see at least the source from which "the letters" came, and how much was asked for them and how much was promised. The Times people very prudently objected to pay the price until the genuineness of the signatures were proved. You will see the serious and cautious way in which Sir Charles Russell fenced with Mr. Soames as witness. Sir Charles knew well he had got an old 'un to deal with, and, indeed, if he did not, he found it out in the course of the examination.

Mr. Soames admitted that the letters were obtained from Mr. Pigott, who had procured them in 1886 for Mr. Houston, the Secretary of the Royal and Patriotic League, who in the interests of his association and wishing to do the Times and God service, took the letters to Mr. Buckle, who referred him to Mr. Macdonald, the head bottle-washer of the leading journal. And there for the present they stop. We are not told how from Macdonald they went to Mr. John Walter and from him to Mr. W. H. Smith and finally to Lord Salisbury when the conspiracy was deemed ripe. Soames and Macdonald tell us that the letters cost Pigott a lot of money and that he asked £5000 for them. The Times allowed the informer to understand that if he went into the witness box "he should not want." But no fixed sum was promised to him.

Mr. Soames stated that he knew for a fact that Mr. Lewis, Mr. Parnell's solicitor, and Mr. Labouchere offered Pigott £3000 if he would swear in the witness box that the letters were forgeries; and that Times detectives had found Pigott in company with Mr. Lewis and Mr. Labouchere at Mr. Labouchere's house. [This was the sensation]. Mr. Macdonald's evidence chiefly referred to his own opinions in regard to the genuineness of the letters and of Mr. Parnell's and his secretary Mr. Campbell's hand-writing. Mr. Macdonald stated that a part of the celebrated Parnell letter had been copied and afterwards finished. The president, Mr. Justice Hannen, upon the letter in its gelatine covering being handed to him said, he could not detect any traces of damping, but that question would be tested in due course. Mr. Macdonald informed the court that, before the letters had been offered to the Times, they had been offered by Mr. Houston to Lord Hartington. Mr. Macdonald professed to be unaware that the letters had also been offered to the Pall Mall Gazette for £1000. He acknowledged that the Times had paid £1780 for eleven letters—Parnell's and Egan's—and that this was the sum paid by Houston to Pigott, but Mr. Macdonald confessed he took no pains to investigate the details of Mr. Heuston's alleged expenditure. Sir Charles Russell inquired if he had asked Mr. Houston for the envelopes of the 5 letters signed by Parnell and the 6 by Egan? Mr. Macdonald replied that he had not, and that he understood that it was the practice amongst the leaders of the League to have the body of their letters written by one hand, the signature by another and the envelope by a third hand.

This might or might not be true, but I must add that this part of Mr. Macdonald's evidence was received with "laughter" in the court, and is so reported. Other answers from the same gentleman were greeted in the same way. We, who were not in the court cannot judge, but we know how different evidence appears when heard and when only seen in print. And here I must leave this vitally interesting case until my next. You may receive something by telegram.

"THE BISMARCK DYNASTY"

The last number of the "Contemporary Review" to hand by the mail opens with a remarkable Paper, bearing the above title. The article, contrary to the established rule, is unsigned, but it contains ample internal evidence that the writer, whoever he may be, has drawn his information from very high quarters. We append some extracts:—

"Prince Bismarck, though supreme in Germany, is not immortal. He is ageing, and ageing fast. He was born on the 1st April, 1815, and is therefore in his seventy-fourth year. Like many men of strong character, he believes that he has been privileged to know the date of his death. He will not die, he is convinced, until 1890. He will not be living beyond 1894. Whatever ridicule may be thrown upon the notion that even a Reichskanzler can cast his horoscope with such precision as to fix the approximate date of his death in this fashion, the fact is indisputable that Prince Bismarck holds that belief and acts upon it. Life for him is no indefinite vista stretching out into the distant future. He will have done with it for good and all before the end of 1894. Given these two factors—first, the possession of almost absolute power, and secondly, the conviction that he must lay it down in five years at the utmost—it was inevitable that he should cast about for a successor, to whom he could hand over the Imperial Majordomo-ship, which he has spent his life in creating. Five years ago the American Minister at Berlin noted with surprise, and with some degree of dismay, that Prince Bismarck seemed blind to this obvious necessity of his unique position. "I think that Bismarck is educating no successor. No man is ready to take his shoes. He is one of those great trees that stunt everything that grows in their shadow. He is intolerant of the idea that any man should share the credit with him of guiding the destinies of Germany, and the result is that the officials under him are more apt to be marionettes than persons of independent action." The Chancellor, however, suddenly woke up to the danger of the position which he had created, and set about developing an heir. The task was none too easy.....Prince Bismarck, however, in his search for a successor, did not go beyond the limits of his own household. Probably he did not consciously propose to himself the founding of a dynasty. Many of our most important acts are unconscious. Consciously or unconsciously, Prince Bismarck followed the example of all men who have founded dynasties since the world began. He selected as his heir his eldest son, and his determination to secure the succession of Count Herbert to the Chancellorship is the secret clue to the recent events which have scandalised Europe. It is a new war of succession that is being waged, under a thin veil of constitutional and legal form, a Bismarckian war for the foundation of a Bismarckian dynasty, in which Otto the First will be succeeded by his son Bismarck the Second. Before Count Herbert was taken up for development he was regarded as a rather disreputable representative of his family. In his hot youth he had got mixed up in some broil about a woman at Bonn, out of which he had to slash his way with a sword, receiving by way of memento an ugly cut across the head in the duel, which, fortunately, did not end fatally for either party. He was wounded in the thigh in that cavalry fight which the Kölnische Zeitung suggests was due to the non-existent telegram that reached Bazaine in round-about fashion from Sir Robert Morier. He was then serving as a private in the Draggoon Guards, and the wound was caused by a shot which struck him in the upper part of the thigh during an attack at Mars le-Tour by the French, who were pushing on to Verdun. He had displayed great bravery and had received no fewer than three shots—one through the breast of his coat, another on his watch, the third was that in his thigh; the wound was painful but not dangerous. After the war he did nothing to distinguish himself until he figured in a great scandal, which serves still further to accentuate his view of woman. Woman, in the eyes of the barbarian, is a combination of a milch cow and a household drudge. Low though this ideal may be, it is higher than that which exists where she is regarded as the mere vehicle for the passion of the adulterer."

After some further references to Count Bismarck, the article proceeds:—

"When the old Kaiser died, there was for a moment a period of painful suspense and indecision in the mind of the Mayor of the Palace. What should be done? How long would the Emperor Frederic live Was there any need for Emperor Frederic at all? From the point of view of the Bismarck dynasty, it certainly seemed desirable that the succession should pass direct from the grandfather to the grandson. For the young man was reared in the Bismarckian tradition. He was a product of Blood and, Iron. With him, unless he is foully belied, the omnipotent Reichskanzler had made sundry important and binding agreements on the principle of "do ut des." His father on the other hand, was not a Bismarckian, He moved in the midst of the Prussian Junkers like a cultured Athenian amidst the warlike Spartans. He represented civilisation, culture, peace. Above all, he represented the hateful principle of the right of woman to the recognition of her faculties regardless of her sex, and he paid to the genius of his wife the homage to which she was entitled as an intellectual force, without stinting the measure of his devotion because she was 'only a woman.' If the Crown Prince never came to the throne Prince Bismarck's great danger would be averted, and if, at the same time that this peril disappeared, the Chancellor were to rivet his claims upon the young Emperor by placing him at once upon the throne without waiting for his father's decease, a double advantage would be secured. Bad as it was for Prince Bismarck to have Frederic upon the throne under any circumstances, the actual circumstances accentuated every objectionable element in the case. If the Emperor had been hale and well, he would at least have been constantly exposed to the influence of his mighty Minister, who could be relied upon to spare no effort to bring the utmost possible pressure of outside events and the business of State to bear upon the new Sovereign. But with an Emperor whose only throne was his deathbed, and who of necessity spent most of his time in the company of his English wife and his English physician, what could be done? The influence of the Empress Victoria he had always reckoned upon as hostile to all his peculiar ideas. That influence was now paramount, and none could say how long it might last. That a woman, and that woman an Englishwoman, and that Englishwoman a Liberal saturated with progressive ideas, should practically have the Emperor of Germany in her hand, and should control the master of the master of Germany, was enough to give Prince Bismarck the nightmare. Yet, after all, what could he do? His own dynasty was not sufficiently consolidated for him to venture upon the arbitrary deposition of Frederic III. And yet, unless the Emperor died, all hope of the assured accession of Count Herbert must perish. Of this he speedily satisfied himself by practical experiment. He repeatedly sent his son and heir-presumptive to transact business with the Emperor, only to find that Frederic III. refused to deal with any one but the Chancellor himself. If the Emperor lived, therefore, the one dream of the old Chancellor's life would be thwarted. Count Herbert could never be the Chancellor of Frederic III."

At leisure we shall give further extracts from this remarkable article; it is nothing more nor less than a venemous attack on the great Chancellor who can well afford to laugh at such taunts and sneers: he sits on too high a pedestal in the world's admiration to be touched by magazine articles.

Railway Items.

ECHOES FROM BANCALARI—MR GLASCOW'S STATEMENTS—INSPECTOR SILVA VERSUS THE PACIFIC RAILWAY—INSPECTOR FERNANDEZ'S REPORT.

Amongst other details brought to light yesterday in regard to the accident on the Rosario railway, we note that there were three Irish immigrants in the ill-fated train. Nothing is known of them. Their names—M Scallan, James Walshy and Bridget Walsh—do not appear on the lists of injured. They may have escaped unscathed, but the inquiries made yesterday in regard to their fate gave no satisfactory result. Most of the immigrants were either Italian, French, or Spanish, and they numbered in all 230 souls. What could have become of those three, in whom the British community will take more ordinary interest? The traffic-manager, who was the first to arrive on the scene of the disaster, informs us that no English-speaking immigrant was injured or killed. Perhaps, the three continued the journey to Rosario.

We had an interview yesterday with the traffic-manager and we feel pleasure in making room for his version of the disaster. He says there were only 145 immigrants in the train, and that there were 4 coaches calculated to carry 400 people. The line was clear on Thursday night at 9 o'clock. The doors of the carriages were not locked, and the carriages fell in such a way that the doors were practically useless.

The unfortunate immigrants were pulled out through the windows. He admits, however, that one door was locked. This was necessary to prevent communication between the immigrants and a first-class carriage. Mr Glasgow inform us that candles are used in the sleeping-saloons, and that the company are making arrangements to use gas instead of oil. He praises the activity (!) better say good intentions, of the Astencia Publica.

The next version to be heard is that of Inspectors Koenig, Weiskal, and Fay. These gentlemen are at present drawing up their report, which will be made known to-morrow morning. The report, after passing through the Boards of Public Works and National Railways, will be sent to the Home-Office, and then we shall hear what Minister Pacheco thinks about the whole affair.

Two reports were received yesterday at the National Railway Board. One from Inspector Fernandez states that the Andine Line as is bad as ever. The derailment which occurred on the 1st inst., involved a considerable delay, and the suspension of traffic on the Pacific and Central Argentine Railways has placed the manager at his wits' ends. Another off-the-track occurred on the 8th inst., at kil. 30, and fresh delays were thereby caused. At present the line is clear.

The other report received is from Inspector Silva, who complains of the terrible irregularities in the service of the Argentine Great Western. Mr. Silva deals a mild blow at the manager of the Pacific Line, the unsettled state of which has upset the traffic up country. He complains of the very haughty and dictatorial way in which the railway-employees treat the Inspectors and he thinks that this attitude might be traced to instructions from higher spheres. The result of the conduct of the employees is that the Inspector plays a very secondary role and the National Railway Board are held up to ridicule. This is, indeed, a very serious state of affairs. However the public may rest assured that Dr. Araoz will make himself respected, and will moreover force the companies to respect his inspectors. Mr Silva's report is one long attack on the manager of the Pacific Line.

A decree was issued yesterday approving the plans for the Chumbicha-Tinogasta and Andalgala Railway. The kilometric cost is fixed at $20,000 gold.

The Inspector has informed the Board of Public Works that a certain portion of the Pacific Line between kils 66 and 67 was injured by the recent derailment of 9 wagons.

Inspector Nolasco writes to Dr. Araoz to say that the bed of the Andine Railway between Chajala and Villa Mercedes is in such a shaky condition that no train can pass over it without endangering the lives of the passengers. Nice state of affairs.

A decree was drawn up yesterday in the Home-office and will probably be signed by Minister Pacheco to-morrow, authorizing the National Railway Board to call on the police, if necessary, to carry out the orders of the Board. We alluded some days ago to Dr. Araoz's letter on the subject.

An extraordinary general meeting of the Cordoba Central Railway Company was held at the Cannon Street Hotel on February 1—Sir Gabriel Goldney, chairman—for the purpose of considering the purchase of further railways in the Arg. Republic and the rasing of additional capita. The chirman moved a resolution, which was carried, approving of the purchase of the line from Cordoba to Tucuman and authorising the creation of debenture stock, at interest not exceeding 5 per cent. per annum, of an amount not exceeding 4,400,000l., charged upon the whole or part of the company's property and undertaking, including the property to be acquired.

RACING NOTES AND ANTICIPATIONS.

The real racing season commences with to-day's meeting at Palermo with an interesting card which can only be spoilt by numerous defections, as most of the chief Hippic Heroes of 1888 are entered for one or other of the races; as usual, considerable interest will be centred in the question as to whether this or that horse has passed the recess well or has made such commensurate improvement as might be reasonably expected. The Paddock inspection, therefore, is likely to prove most interesting and instructive and the keen-eyed judge of a horse will stand upon a better footing than the most diligent student of public form. Such being the case and not knowing exactly what animals will run, it becomes a difficult task for a writer to direct his readers on the proper road.

The ball will be set rolling with the Premio Apertura, a 3 yr. old race with penalties, causing it to assume the aspect of a handicap; but in spite of his heavy weight, we fail to see anything to beat Osiris, if in good form, Tilimuque appearing to be his most dangerous opponent. In the probable absence of St. Mirin, the Premio Relampago seems to lie between Phidias and Princess May, but in approaching the consideration of the Premio Criadores, we are altogether in the dark and having to rely only on stable reports and whispered rumours, we will not do more than advise our very speculative readers to throw away a few dollars on Bien Venida, in spite of the enormous favouritism of Fidilia. The premios Defensa and Combate should be taken by the Stud Huetel and Marinera between them, and a promising programme concludes with a Trotting Race.

EDITOR'S TABLE

The railway tragedy was again the general topic yesterday; but, though everybody was talking about it all day, no further light whatever was thrown on the matter. The whole terrible affair has opened the public eyes to the fact that with all the inspecting and reporting, and "note passing" going on, and which is recorded daily in our "Railway Items", the whole railway machinery from top to bottom is rotten. The chances are 1,000 to nothing that the fault will not be brought home to anybody in particular though the public eye is on the permanent way Inspector of the Company and the Government Inspector who writes periodical notes to Dr. Araoz. The Company will probably have to disburse heavily for damages. There is already a proposal to form a Lawyers' League to sue the Company on behalf of the families of the victims. A general public subscription has also been started for them.

Advices from Rome report that ex-Governor Rocha had an hour's private interview with King Humbert at the Quirinal last week. His Majesty knew the "lado flaco" of the ex-Governor, and praised La Plata to the skies.

There seems to be a hitch about all "cosas de España" just at present. The torpedo boat Peral disappointed the whole world on Friday, by not making her promised experimental trip, and last night half Iberian Buenos Ayres was baulked of a night's amusement by the sudden illness of the great actress Señora Tubau, who was unable to make her debut.

The National of last night says it has important financial news, but cannot publish it. Something is evidently up, or gold would not be going down

There is bull-fighting at Colonia to-day, and steamers leave the Boca at 8½, 9 and 10 a.m. for the scene of action. The "You and I" cigar divan in Calle Florida sells tickets.

The Tigre Boat Club have applied to Government for some state progerty, a "bañado", in Las Conchas. The Club intends building a boat-house there.

The Sociedad de Beneficencia are working heaven and earth to get free water-supply for the magnificent new military hospital in Calle Entre-Rios.

The Italian Consul in Rosario has taken legal proceedings against some well-known "jovenes" there for ill-treating several Italian women during Carnival. Better for the youngster papas to come forward and settle the matter. The papers say that this is by no means the first ugly scrape these young scamps have got into.

The South Dock of the new Port is not quite in working order yet, as since it was opened on the 25th ult., only seven vessels, including war ships have entered it, and five of them have left.

The paving row at the Boca is all settled The irate "vecinos" have listened to reason and agreed to pay, the difference in cost of the "mixed" (Oh! very) pavement they previously had and the miserable (mixed and miserable) "adoquines" that caused all the fun.

The Free Night School for Adults at Calle Caugallo 1136 is now open from 7 to 9 p.m. every day.

We felt rather inclined to indulge in a "triste sonrisa" yesterday on reading in the columns of a colleague that the Constituent Convention at the La Plata is seven years old! We really thought it was only about half that. During the seven years it has been exclusively employed in reforming the Buenos Ayres Constitution, and ten times seven years more will probably elapse before the task is finished. So best perhaps. Boulanger, we bet, will reform the French Constitution off the face of the earth before half seven months shall have run their course.

The "fideos" affair in Rosario is getting lively. The factory was sacked on Friday, and two of the accused officials in the Quimica Office have "got the sack." In fact the whole affair has assumed a Jack Falstaff hue.

President Celman opened the Museum of Argentine Products on Friday in presence of a numerous and distinguished company, including some of the Cabinet Ministers, the Lord Mayor, many military men and others. Mr Sunblad read an address, and the president promised the institution his warmest support. This show of products has been made up from every province of this vast republic; and we strongly advise a visit to it. The main fact impressed on even the most superficial observer is that the gigantic natural wealth of this country is as yet barely in the infancy of its development. The numerous travelling agents of foreign merchants and manufacturers now in this city will find in a careful study of this Show a wide field for future enterprise.

All the survivors of the Old Guard of the Colon Theatre of thirty years ago are sorry to hear of Tamberlick's death. Not even Mario held a higher place on the lyric boards. In natural voice he was Mario's superior.

The Town Council had a chat about the railway accident on Friday, and named a Trlumvirate to enquire into it. (Judging from all the public bodies who have done likewise, there will be the usual confused kettle of fish over the matter.) Alderman Gallarini pitched strongly into the Asistencia Publica for the wretched figure it has cut on the sad occasion, in spite of the lot of public money it absorbs on its numerous and costly but apparently utterly useless staff. Alderman Madero took the floor to arraign the reporters of the Press for poking fun at the City Fathers, and putting into their mouths eloquent speeches they never deliver, and making them say things in print which they never in reality utter. He moved that reporters be excluded "in toto" from the sittings of the Council. This sweeping proposal was rejected in favour of one providing a special room for the reporters, with an unlimited supply of Havannah

The business at the ring in gold to-day was most important, and it could be seen at a glance that the bullish back of the market is broken, and that the drop may be fairly considered to be now in full swing. Many think that the bulls have been routed and that the fall is a bearish triumph, but they are mistaken. Nothing of the kind has taken place. On the contrary, the bulls, who had been steadily elevating prices up to the present, are now realizing their profits, and perhaps even taking advantage of the downward current to swell their gains, whilst the bears, who generally, if not always, begin by selling low, seize the opportunity of a turn in the market to sell double, and, unable to get rid of their heavy position in time, invariably get "cornered" at the settlement. This is the speculative play in gold, with the minor changes rung in at times by banking interference, war's alarms, or epidemic panics. It is also the explanation of the difficulty of hoisting prices over a certain quotation, and it is in all probability the true explanation of the present state of affairs. As for probabilities, they point to a continued fall for the present, which may take the premium to 56 o|o, when the market will be invaded with bulls again on the look out for the wonted gorge that liquidations invariably afford them.

The stock market, precisely when matters looked blackest and dullest, is beginning to hold up its head again, as if throwing off the lethargy of three months of somnolency. Holders have had, indeed, a severe time of it, hoping against hope and striving against continued disaster, and they were almost driven to despair by the apathy of buyers and fall in prices which looked them in the face. Now, however, as if by magic, affairs have altered: there are buyers offering for National Bank Shares, Credito Real, and Constructors, and all three are looking up in price and promising revival. This is to a certain extent satisfactory, but the market is so surfeited with values of all kinds that it is very doubtful if this genuine reaction can last as long as holders augur.

The following is a summary of operations effected this morning at the first ring:—

Circulars were handed round to-day announcing that Mr. C. H. Prodgers, who has a large circle of friends in this market, has started as house and general commission agent. His offices are 546 Cangallo.

As a reminiscence of the memorable June "krach," the special committee of creditors announced to-day a further dividend of 10 o|o on the loan.

The sale of chacras in the Constancia Agricultural Centre, Ayacucho, was announced to day, the lots fetching an average of 104 dols. the hectare, a very high rate indeed for lands in that quarter. In the same parish, but in a different neighbourhood, further sales of chacras are reported, at an average of 65 dols.

The Royal Mail packet Trent brought £80,000 for the Banda Oriental.

The latest shippings of jerked-beef are: 2431 bales per s.s. Timavo, 790 bales per Lassabon, and 659 bales per Rio Grande; all for Brazil.

On next Wednesday the Banco Constructor inaugurates its new buildings for 'juzgados" for the National Government. It may be remembered that this Bank took the contract from the Government for the erection of these buildings in the Capital, to receive payment in bonds. The business was a good one, both for the Government and the Bank, and now the first of these buildings in the Calle Larga, Barracas, is finished, and will be inaugurated with the usual formalities.

Respecting the telegram from Paris of the resignation of the Board of Directors of the Bank of France, it is presumed that the cause is the very large amount of copper warrants which the Directors took from the Comptoir d'Escompte, and which, as a natural consequence, leaves a heavy loss to the Bank of France. The crisis on the Paris Stock Exchange, although not so severe, is not as yet over.

The fall in the gold market has improved everything, and there is a much better feeling in the market for the last two days. We hear that the Minister of Hacienda contemplates two very important measures which will be presented to Congress. First, to restrict the emission of Cedulas, second to allow only cash gold sales to be quoted. All purchases of gold on time will henceforward be done between house and house, and not on the Bolsa, which, no doubt, will greatly check the speculation. When gold a few days ago reached 159 and 160 numbers entered the market and bought on time for a rise, as the opinion was general gold was bound for 165 or 170. Those parties will now have to sell at a loss unless things change greatly.

It was rumoured this morning on the Bolsa that there are 700 English emigrants in the Asilo, and that the Department of Immigration is preparing the old immigrant hotel in San Fernando for another batch of 1700 British immigrants expected to arrive in a few days. It is to be hoped the Minister will put a stop to this, as there is really no means of placing all these poor people at such a short notice. As was before stated about 200 per month is the most that can be conveniently placed. Large families with small children cannot find employment in town, they must all go out to the camp, and, although we have given every publicity to the arrival, we have received no applications from the estancieros and sheepfarmers, so that the sooner Mr. Navarro stops this system of free passages the better.

Exchange continues to improve and the rates were quoted to-day at 46 15|16—47.1. 4.96-96½ francs Paris and 497-97½ francs Antwerp. Reichsmarks 3.99.

The Banco Nacional will start discounting again on Monday.

Affairs on the Produce market are most satisfactory though the fall in gold will no doubt exert a certain prejudicial influence on sales, which during the week have been very easy and at high prices. There is more wool in the Once than in the South market and the railway waggons are full. The wheat arrivals during the week have been very small and prices advanced.

The well-known brokerage firm of Acosta and Alkaine is dissolved. Mr. Alkaine leaves for his fine estancia in the South for a short trip.

The English Bank of Rio will shortly move into its splendid premises in Calle Piedad alongside the Bolsa. The bank under the very able management of Mr. Heriot has sprung into a great business, an although his new premises are large and roomy, we believe that at the rate the business of this bank is progressing that in a few years they will have to get still larger premises.

With much pleasure we learn that the long-talked of railway from Bahia Blanca to Patagones is to be carried out, and the very valuable salt mines called Las Salinas Inglesas, which lie on the route, are to be worked. It is indeed wonderful that this great source of revenue to the province has so long remained dormant, particularly as all the vessels coming up from the Rio Negro bring up to the Boca two or three hundred sacks of this salt each trip. Now, however, the salt mines will be worked on concession.

The Finance Minister has decided to extend the advantages of Art. 3 of the Stamp Act to the City Mortgage Bank.

There was another mammoth gold business done at the second hour, nearly 3½ millions being disposed of, which gives a round total of close on seven millions for the day. Prices at first gave way all down the lines tumbling to 157 for cash and 156,70 for end of month, but towards the close a reaction set in and the rates finished at 157,30 for all dates. It is thought that the premium will again pursue a downward course on Monday, as everything is ripe for it, and some parties think rates will touch 155 before there is anything like a serious resistance offered. In Cedulas there was little or nothing done, and the activity in National Bank Shares continued with heavy buyers for both end of month and April, and it is now thought that the movement is no mere sport but a genuine appreciation; the quotation left off at 259,50. The other stocks were practically neglected.

DR. J. M. HENRIQUEZ

GRADUATE OF THE NEW YORK COLLEGE OF DENTISTRY,

Of the Medical University of the City of New York, of the Dental Department of the University of Buenos Aires and former preceptor at the New York College of Dentistry offers his professional services to the public.

Having just arrived from New York, after an absence of six months from this city, I bring with me all the latest appliances and improvements in the dental line.

During my stay in the North I have made a special study of Crown-work, and am able to replace without pain, artificial crowns of an

If but two firm roots remain in the jaw in the proper position an entire set of teeth can be attached to them, and restore the mouth to its original beauty and comfort without the use of a plate.

At 1. is the root of a front tooth as it would appear if extracted. 2. shows the end of such a root prepared for a crown; 3. is the crown ready for attachment; 4. the crown attached to the root.

It is needless to say that I never extract the teeth for the purpose of crowning them. The cuis of the roots are simply for the purpose of illustrating the method of attachment.

Fig. 2. represents model of a mouth in which the two front tee
